

Can You Dig It?

Summer Fun Archaeology & History Camp

July 18 — 22, 2011

9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily

Appropriate for children ages 10 - 13

Cost $150 (some scholarships available)

Hurry to register - there are only 20 openings in this camp!

Jay Stottman, the Kentucky Archaeological Survey, and historian Rick Bell will guide campers through hands-on archaeology and history detective activities at Portland Wharf Park to learn more about this important site. Children will spend one half day, each day, on archaeology and one half-day, each day, on history projects. Children will be responsible for bringing their own lunch and drinks. Water will be provided.

Scholarships: If you need to be considered for a partial or full scholarship, please ask your child to write a one-page story about why he or she would like to attend the camp. At the end, a parent can provide a brief explanation of why they need scholarship aid.

Child's name: _____

Parent/Guardian name: _____

Address: _____

Phone: (home) _____ (cell) _____

Email address: _____

Please list any medical conditions we should know about:

Emergency contact: _____

Emergency contact phone (please provide two emergency contact numbers):

Phone: _____

This is a Portland Bicentennial Project with support of Metro Parks, Portland Museum, Kentucky Archaeological Survey & U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.